Information

Official stamp issue of the Principality of Liechtenstein

With its valleys, slopes and mountains, Liechtenstein's diverse landscape is home to a wide variety of animals and plants. Photographer Roland Rick captured four wild animals in their natural environment with his camera.

The "Fox" (face value: CHF 1.00) can be found in forests, meadows and occasionally in urban areas. It is an omnivore and, in addition to mice and insects, does not shy away from food scraps, waste and carrion. The "Squirrel" (face value: CHF 1.20) usually has a similar reddish colour to the fox. This native rodent can be recognised by its white-coloured belly.

The "Marmot" (face value: CHF 1.90) lives in the Alpine region above the tree line. It spends ninety per cent of its life in burrows it has built itself with extensive tunnel systems. If the marmot manages to escape its natural enemy, the golden eagle, it can live up to fifteen years. Weighing up to two hundred kilograms, the "Stag" (face value: CHF 2.50) is the largest wild animal in our range. The males have a mane on their neck and antlers that grow larger and more complex over the years.

This year, we are again using the overprinting method for four existing self-adhesive definitive stamps. This means that the original face value of the stamp will be visibly corrected and overprinted with the new face value. This is due to the price increases by Liechtensteinische Post AG. Stamps that have already been issued remain valid for postage.

The "Marbled White" definitive stamp from the 2009 butterfly series will now be issued with a postage value of CHF 1.00 (previously CHF 1.30) as a result of the overprint. This butterfly from the "browns" subfamily of butterflies lives along the Rhine and in mountainous regions. The "Spotted Darter" from the 2020 dragonfly issue will also have a new face value of CHF 1.20 (previously CHF 2.00). It has completely black legs and its wings are densely veined.

Two stamps from the 2023 Samina Valley fauna issue will also be corrected: We are increasing the face value of the "Alpine Salamander" self-adhesive stamp to CHF 1.90 (previously CHF 0.90) and the "Alpine Silver Ant" is being given a new face value of CHF 2.50 (previously CHF 1.10) due to the overprinting process. The shiny black amphibian and the endangered insect are both native to the wild and romantic Samina Valley.

Official stamp issue of the Principality of Liechtenstein

In view of the blazing conflicts and inhumane wars around the world, Philately Liechtenstein would like to send out a call for peace to the world with its new issue. As living in a peaceful country cannot be taken for granted, special attention is to be paid to the topic of peace.

In her design, designer Michèle Steffen-Goop has expressed the idea that peace comes from small things and from interpersonal relationships. As an individual, every person can and should always keep peace in mind and live in respectful interaction with others.

Despite its restraint and fragility, the dove of peace is the focus of the new "Peace" special stamp (face value: CHF 1.90). It forms the eye of a face depicted in profile, which is sometimes only recognisable at second glance. The dove symbolises the prospect of peace as well as peace in one's own thoughts. The watercolour is kept simple in the colours of white and blue.

Official stamp issue of the Principality of Liechtenstein

For 75 years, the SOS Children's Villages organisation has been committed to the welfare, education and protection of children. Its vision is to give every child a secure future. Founded in 1949 by Hermann Gmeiner from Vorarlberg, the aid organisation is meanwhile active in 138 countries, and has also been in Liechtenstein for the past five years. The patron of the organisation in Liechtenstein is H.S.H. Tatjana von Latorff, Princess of Liechtenstein.

The organisation's global work focuses on the protection and family-based care of children who no longer have a safe home or have no home at all. These children grow up with four to five other children with an SOS Children's Village mother. In this environment, they can attend school, learn a trade and are prepared for independence later on.

In war and crisis zones, the non-profit organisation also supports families, children and young people in need with humanitarian aid. In addition, child protection zones are set up where children can play. With our special stamp "Children's Laughter" (face value: CHF 1.00), we are emphasising the need for a secure future for children all over the world and thus honouring the valuable work of SOS Children's Villages.

Official stamp issue of the Principality of Liechtenstein

As part of our "Fine Arts from Liechtenstein" series, this year we are putting the spotlight on two artists and their life's work. The special stamps show images by "Hanni Schierscher" (face value: CHF 1.00) and "Evi Kliemand" (face value: CHF 1.20).

Liechtenstein and contributed a great deal to the dissemination and research of Liechtenstein's postage stamps."

Evi Kliemand's (d.o.b. 1946) two-part work "Fragile Balance" was created in 2007 using the gouache technique on canvas in the format 180 x 210 cm. It highlights the fragile, endangered balance in all living things and the perception of it. The painter dedicates this special stamp to her father Alfons Kliemand, who "worked as a globally networked philatelist in

The image "Iris" by Hanni Schierscher (d.o.b. 1943) was created by means of natural self-printing using plant sap on handmade paper. Her work is characterised by the fact that she does not put a conceived motif on paper, but instead initiates processes that give form to the forces inherent in nature. She does not want to depict anything; her artistic works are part of natural processes and thus become translators between nature and the viewer.
